

Evidence to Action:
Challenges to Implementing Evidence Based Practices in Community Settings

Ronnie Rubin, PhD

is the Director of the Evidence-based Practice and Innovation Center (EPIC) at the Philadelphia Department of Behavioral Health and Intellectual disAbility Services (DBHIDS). EPIC supports efforts to provide individuals with access to proven-effective interventions that support recovery and resilience. In 2013, Dr. Rubin was brought on board to provide leadership and set the strategic direction for this newly established Center. She is involved in a range of activities including aligning operational, administrative and fiscal policies to support implementation and sustainability of evidence-based practices (EBP), indentifying lessons learned and best practices across several DBHIDS EBP initiatives, providing training and resources for internal and external stakeholders, and developing strategies to support workforce development and outcomes evaluation.

Dr. Rubin received her doctorate in Clinical Psychology from the University of Delaware and completed her pre-and post-doctoral training at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

She is passionate about bridging research and community practice to ensure that people have access to the best available services to support their recovery and resilience.
