

Creative Action

The Arts in Public Health

Wounded Warriors and the Healing Power of Stories

Gala True PhD

Medical Anthropologist, Center for Health Equity
Research & Promotion, Philadelphia VA Medical Center

&

Robert Patrick

Director, Veterans History Project of the American
Folklife Center, Library of Congress

Veterans returning from deployments in the current wars in Iraq and Afghanistan have rich stories to share about their experiences of military service and about coming home. These narratives have much to teach us all—public health researchers, health care providers, historians, and fellow veterans and their families. This presentation will highlight some of the projects and research that harness veterans' stories to improve care of veterans and ensure they do not feel alone in their experiences. Veterans' stories will be shared through multi-media presentation of video, still photographs, and excerpts from Life Story interviews.

January 25th @ 12:00p

Golkin Room, Houston Hall
3417 Spruce Street

RSVP at cphi@pobox.upenn.edu

Photo provided by the Library of Congress Veterans History Project

